

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) (during the vote). Members are advised there are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

□ 1802

Messrs. JACKSON of Illinois, OBEY, WYNN and RUPPERSBERGER changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

☐ 1800

HOUR OF MEETING ON THURSDAY,
MARCH 4, 2004

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

SAVE THE HUBBLE

(Mr. MCDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, 2 years ago today the Columbia Space Shuttle, in what turned out to be its last full mission, serviced the Hubble Space Telescope.

Those astronauts knew and children across America know that Hubble is a national treasure. Hubble offers a dramatic view into the cosmos, and it has yielded profound scientific discoveries. Yet for all of Hubble's national acclaim and the inspiration it has given us, NASA has given Hubble a death sentence. It is up to us to commute that sentence.

That is why I have joined with a bipartisan group calling for NASA to convene the best and the brightest minds to reevaluate their decision and look at every reasonable alternative. In the meantime, keep the Hubble going.

In my view, Hubble is one of the best scientific investments we have ever made. Hubble is certainly the best recruiter we have today to inspire our children to excel in science and reach for the stars.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEARCE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DEFAZIO addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. MCCOTTER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. McCOTTER addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

OUR ECONOMIC POLICY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, the President last week delivered the Central American Free Trade Agreement to this Congress as part of his economic plan to grow the economy. What we have seen from the President's economic plan, which consists of two basic solutions, are two things. One is tax cuts for the wealthiest people of our society, the 1 percent wealthiest, the people who need it least, hoping it will trickle down and create jobs. The other part of this program is to push through this Congress more NAFTAs, the Central American Free Trade Agreement, the Free Trade Area of the Americas, trade agreements which have no labor and environmental standards, trade agreements which hemorrhage jobs, which ship jobs overseas.

We have seen that kind of economic policy, except we have seen it not work. We have seen in this administration a loss of almost 3 million jobs. In my State of Ohio, we have lost one out of every six manufacturing jobs. Hundreds of thousand of Ohioans have lost their jobs. We have seen no manufacturing jobs created. In fact, since President Bush took office, we have lost manufacturing jobs not just in Ohio but across the country every single month of the Bush administration.

Now, just recently the President put out his economic report. This Economic Report of the President is put out every year. As my colleagues can see here, the President signed it on page 4, and this economic report makes a lot of promises. As one of his earlier economic reports had made, the President in 2002 promised an increase of 3.4 million jobs. We have actually seen a loss of 1.7 million jobs since then. In this report, he makes another promise of 2.6 million jobs created just this year alone. Already the President's people are backing off that promise.

But you might be interested, and there are some things in this report that the President and his people, his Chief Economic Adviser, have sort of bragged about. One of the things that the President's Economic Adviser said when he said, "When a good or service is produced more cheaply abroad, it makes more sense to import it than to provide it domestically," and then the Chief Economic Adviser to the President said, That is a good thing. If it is made somewhere else cheaper, then good economics says we ought to ship those jobs overseas and make them more cheaply overseas and make them there and displace the jobs in the United States.

That is not good economic policy. It is not good trade policy. It particularly is not good policy for our people. Yes, we want to do trade. Yes, we want that train to move out of the station advancing trade, but we want to do the trade, we want fair trade, not free trade. This administration, unfortunately, is committed to free trade.

In the meantime, the President's Council on Economic Advisers has said in this report, also on page 103, In the long run, a large part of the burden of taxes is likely to be shifted to workers through a reduction in wages. In other words, the President's policy of tax cuts for the wealthy, hoping that it trickles down and provides something for everybody else, and these trade agreements with no labor and environmental standards, these trade agreements that ship jobs overseas, in the meantime, the President's people say what is going to happen is a large part of the burden of taxes is likely to be shifted to workers through a reduction in wages.

That is why even people that have kept their jobs, as most people have during this Bush recession, even then those people's wages have been stagnant or in some cases have gone down. That is because the President's people say that we are going to see tax cuts for the wealthy, and we are going to see loss of wages for workers and for the middle class.

The President's Chief Economic Adviser goes on to say, Analyses that fail to recognize this shift can be misleading, suggesting that higher income groups bear an unrealistically large share of the long run burden. In other words, when the President's people say, well, we have to give a tax cut to the richest people in our society because they are paying the most taxes, the President's own Economic Adviser said that is not the case.

What is happening in our economy, you may applaud that, is these tax cuts shift the burden. As we cut taxes on the wealthy, it shifts the burden to the middle class in the form of lower wages, and we can also see that, Mr. Speaker, with what Alan Greenspan said last week.

He came to this Congress and said I support continuing the tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans, and then he said, but because of that, we have a budget shortfall and we have to cut Social Security. So the President of the